

Peter Frizzell

Peter has worked on LOHP sites since 2003. His first involvement with Little Ouse Valley sites was in 1996 whilst volunteering for Suffolk Wildlife Trust. He was educated at Imperial College with an MSc in Environmental Technology and a postgraduate diploma from Reading University in Contaminated Land and Groundwater. During the 1990's he worked for English Nature on various contracts including impacts of pollution and water abstraction on conservation. He is now a director of Peter Frizzell Ltd. which specialises in practical management of nature reserves.
